TAMING FISH. — A little girl residing near a pond, in Massachusetts, has succeeded in taming some of the fish by throwing crumbs of bread, crackers, etc. into the water. The species called the perch seem to be the most tractable and docile. One of them often takes the end of her finger in his mouth, while another will glide gently into her hand and turn on one side, and so remain, apparently reposing till raised quite to the surface. The little girl walks out on a plank, sustained a few inches above the water, and before she reaches the end of the plank the fish may be seen darting rapidly towards their feeding ground. The larger ones, especially, are disposed to drive off the smaller ones, but she keeps order among them by means of a stick with a sewing needle attached to the end of it, and when one picks a quarrel he gets a stab and is off at once.

TO ALLAY INFLAMMATION. — A correspondent says: A young lady whilst in the country some years ago, stepped on a rusty nail which ran through her shoe and foot. The inflammation and pain was of course very great, and lock jaw apprehended. A friend of the family, however, recommended the application of a beet, taken fresh from the garden and pounded fine, to the wound. It was done, and the effect was very beneficial. Soon the inflammation began to subside, and by keeping on the crushed beet and changing it for a fresh one, as its virtue seemed to become impaired, a speedy cure was effected. Simple but effectual remedies like this should be known to every one.

SMILES AND FROWNS. — Which will you do — smile and make your household happy, or be crabbed, and make all those young ones gloomy, and the elder ones miserable! The amount of happiness you can produce is incalculable, if you show a smiling face, a kind heart, and speak pleasant words. Wear a pleasant countenance, let joy beam in your eyes, and love glow on your forehead. There is no joy like that which springs from a kind act or a pleasant deed; and you will feel it at night when you rest, at morning when you rise, and through the day when about your business. — Home Journal.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE STATE.

WEDNESDAY MORNING, SEPT. 6, 186

The Negro at the South

It is not surprising that many of the Southern people still persist in regarding the negro as a slave notwithstanding he has been declared free and in spite of the fact that the military force of the Government is instructed to see that the late masters do not oppress the blacks or compel them to unrequited toil. The force of custom and habit is supreme. Prejudices which have been inwrought into the very fabric of society, are not to be dissolved and blown away in a day or a year. It is quite in conformity with what we might expect that life long slave holders should now be unwilling to give up a system, which whether profitable or not gave large owners of human chattels a social and political power that they could have not otherwise acquired. To hold large numbers of slaves was to possess a superiority that could in no other manner be attained. The large slave holder was a prominent personage in his county or district. He was a man of affluence and ease and supported in splendor as he was by the labor of others whom he recompensed not for their toil, he was not likely to give up a position like that which selfishness might envy or enjoy, but which a conscientious and benevolent nature could not do otherwise than reject as unworthy of a character which had a proper appreciation of justice or right.

It is to be expected that the late slaveholders will do their utmost to hold in subjugation those over whom they have been accustomed to exercise supreme control. It will be the business of the Government to see that the promise of freedom which was made to the negro be carried out in letter and spirit. The course the President is pursuing shows that he may be relied on to fulfill the purposes and desires of our loyal people. The feeling against slavery is constantly deepening and the men who fought through the war will not consent under any arrangement or plea to see the accursed system revived.

So far, the negro is doing well. It is said against him that he will not work. Situated as he is, this reluctance to labor, except when driven to it by necessity, is a proof of sagacity in him rather than a reason why he should be censured or condemned. We must remember that he has no inducement to work. He does not know whether he will receive any pay for his labor or not. He fears, and justly, that the fruits of his toil may be snatched away from him by a stronger hand, at the moment when he is ready to enjoy them. Would a white man work under like circumstances? Would he not hesitate to take hold, precisely as the negro does? Assuredly he would. Give the negro an assurance that the reward of his labor shall be his own, and he will work. Experiments already made, prove this. In many parts of the South, the freedmen are under the protection of the military authorities, and, in all cases, they subsist themselves almost without charge to the Government. Many, of course, will be indolent and worthless, but the greater number will work with an earnest purpose, if they have a proper inducement to do so. Give the free negro a chance to show what he can and will do, before it is hastily judged that he is an idle vicious creature, fit only to be a slave.

THE NEGRO UBIQUITOUS.—The Eugene Review recently copied almost the whole of one of our articles in which was discussed, briefly, the propriety of taxing the mines. The Review did well to reprint the article. An effort was made by the editor to criticise it, but before he had proceeded a dozen lines, he fell to prosing, as usual, about the negro. We are quite unable to see the relevancy of these strictures, but suppose they may be taken as examples of Copperhead logic.

A NEW SCHOONER.—A clipper schooner of 200 tons burthen, call the Spirit of the Deep, was launched at the yard of the Gardner Mill Company on the 10th ult., for the Umpqua trade. She is said to be the prettiest vessel of her class on the coast. She is partly owned and will be commanded by Captain John Gage, for whom she was especially constructed.

A NEW ERA IN SANTIAM.—The wagon road into the Santiam mines it seems is completed and the second epoch in the history of Quartzville has been reached by the arrival there of Mrs J M Keeler and Miss Dimick, being the first ladies which have ever reached the classic vale, over the new wagon road on wheels.

TROOPS FOR SHERIDAN.—The New York journals of July 29th say that 25,000 additional troops had been put on the road to Sheridan within a few days. With this reinforcement our army in Texas can hardly number less than 60,000 or 70,000 men. This concentration of troops on the Mexican frontier may possibly signify something.

The Copperhead News of New York says that "Southern patriots have no reason to be ashamed of their failure." And according to the News, no reason to be ashamed that they undertook their rebellious enterprise.

RETIRED.—C. B. Bellinger publishes his retirement from the "sickly atmosphere" of the Iron office, in the last number of that paper. From movements on the outside we presume U. E. Hicks will be his successor.

BAD STATE OF AFFAIRS AT IDAHO CITY. We copy the following from the Mountaineer of yesterday.

IDAHO CITY, August 27th, 1865.

MR EDITOR.—Since I last wrote you this city has been thrown into a state of excitement that has seldom occurred since the early days of California. To-day the streets of this city present a singular appearance—two or three thousand persons armed with shot guns pistols and every kind of a weapon that can be made useful. A Vigilance Committee has been organized, and a collision is expected at any moment. The town has been threatened with devastation by fire, and all the citizens have formed themselves into a body to protect their property against incendiaries. Several arrests have been made, and the Vigilantes are trying to take the prisoners from the jail to execute them. The store keepers have to empty their stores at night. I have been on watch the past three nights, and am almost tired out. The town has been on fire once this week. I am in hopes the Vigilantes will be forced to disband—their object is to get Patterson, the man who killed Pinkham.

LINN COUNTY FAIR.—An Agricultural Fair will be held at Boston, Linn county on Tuesday and Wednesday, September 19th and 20th. Adjoining counties are invited to participate. The following is the programme of exhibition.

J. BARROWS, Secretary.

BORING FOR OIL IN CURRY CO.—The people of Curry county, away down at the mouth of Rogue river, have located the "Union Oil District of Curry county, Oregon," bounded by Pistol river on the south, Rogue river on the north, Illinois river on the east, and the Pacific ocean on the west. Several claims have been staked off within the district for a San Francisco company and boring will be commenced at an early day. Curry county is known to be rich in iron and copper as well as in timber and grazing lands, and will some day contain a large population.—Statesman.

[SPECIAL DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.]

DATES TO SEPTEMBER 4.

Income Receipts.

WASHINGTON, Sept 1. The income receipts yesterday were over two million four hundred thousand dollars which is an excess of four hundred thousand dollars over any previous day. The entire receipts for June and July are nearly fifty eight millions and there are reasons to believe that it will be increased to [illegible] millions by the 1st of October.

Creditors' Meeting.

NEW YORK, Sept 1. The Post says A meeting of the creditors of the firm of Ketchum, Son & Co was held [illegible] the assets [illegible] agreed upon [illegible] sixty per cent of the amount of their claims and all [illegible] property of the firm to be given as its [illegible] in assignees.

Trial of Wirtz.

WASHINGTON, September 1st. The Herald's special dispatch says Wirtz placed in the hands of his counsel yesterday documentary evidence to prove that in establishing the dead line at Andersonville he acted under orders of General Winder, and Seddon the rebel secretary of war. These records of the Andersonville prison are missing and it is believed to be for the purpose of preventing their being used against Wirtz. The clerk in the Quartermaster's department [illegible] hands they were [illegible] has been placed under arrest.

NEW YORK, Sept 1. The Tribune's special says [illegible] Emerson, bailiff of the Wirtz military commission has just returned from the South where he was sent by the Government to summon witnesses for the defense. The names of about sixty rebel officers and men were furnished by Wirtz. Considerable difficulty was experienced by Emerson in finding the witnesses as they were scattered over the States of North and South Carolina, Alabama, Florida and Georgia. A number had gone to Texas and Mexico. Out of the list of sixty but thirty of them were found all of whom are now on the way to Washington. The first subpoena embraces the names of officers of all grades from the rank of Colonel down. Also the number of privates [illegible] of these names served with Wirtz while in command of Andersonville prison.

The Pacific Squadron.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug 31.—The United States sloop of war De Soto arrived at the navy yard this morning from Cayenne via St. Thomas. The De Soto left Boston to join the Pacific Squadron, but at Cayenne her engine was disabled, rendering her return necessary.

The case of Jeff. Davis—Government Finances.

NEW YORK, Sept 1.—The Times' special dispatch says that both the President and Secretary of War are decidedly in favor of a trial before a civil court, at the earliest practicable moment, of Jeff Davis. The chief difficulty has been to find the proper tribunal. The President looks with favor on Knoxville, Tenn., where Davis committed an act of treason by inciting insurrection in a speech to his army. In case he is tried, by a civil court, Chief Justice Chase of Norfolk, Va., will be selected. This is what Davis' friends desire. It may be fairly said, that whenever trial takes place, that Benj. Butler, in conjunction with the Attorney General, will take a prominent part as public prosecutors. The whole matter has been under consideration at a recent cabinet meeting where time and place was so far decided as to render the trial an event near at hand.

The Secretary of the Treasury represents the Dep't in easy condition—receipts from revenue have been fully equal to calculation heretofore made. Those for August amount to over 34 millions.

Mustering out of Regiments.

NEW YORK, Sept 1.—The Post's special says Orders have been issued to muster out thirty more regiments of infantry.

The Atlantic Telegraph.

NEW YORK, Sept 1.—The last mail from England brings a report from good authority that the Great Eastern will be at once dispatched from Sheerness to New Foundland. The object of the trip is to fish up any fragment of the disevered cable which it is hoped will be recovered by means of grapplers. The promoters of this enterprise in England are determined to try another cable next year, making use of recovered portions of the old one.

The Sixteenth Army Corps.

NEW YORK Sept 2.—Gen M J Smith, commanding the Sixteenth Corps issued an order on the 8th of August, at Montgomery, Ala., announcing the dissolution of that organization.

Health of Davis and Clay.

FORTRESS MONROE, Sept 2.—Jeff Davis has been attacked with erysipelas for the second time since his imprisonment. The first attack was very slight. This one was more severe, although it is not looked upon as serious. The health of C C Clay is improving.

From South America.

NEW YORK, Sept 1st.—Advices from South America to July 24th, state that the Paraguayans had suffered a reverse near South Bogota. The Brazilian force attacked the van guard of the Paraguayan army and drove it back with great loss.

The Freedmen.

NEW YORK, Sept 2d.—Reports to the Freedmen's Bureau, from North Carolina, state that the number of whites and blacks supported by Government in that State, is greatly reduced now, amounting to only 10,000. The Freedmen are making fair crops on government farms.

Offenders charged with cruelty to negroes have been arrested and are awaiting trial.

In some cases the blacks are treated with fairness, but more frequently they are abused and oppressed to an awful degree. The right to punish them is still tenaciously held by employers, and a few assert they will have the blacks as slaves or exterminate the whole race. The action of the black men in a great number of instances is equally unfortunate and pitiful. Some are determined to be independent, and only roam about refusing steady employment, being so suspicious that they will assent to no contract.

The Times' Washington special dispatch says A communication has been received at the Freedmen's Bureau from Gen Fisk, Assistant Commissioner of Kentucky, Tennessee and North Carolina dated Aug 20th from Chattanooga. In reference to freedmen's affairs in Tennessee he says it has been his constant effort to break up all contraband camps in East Tennessee. At this date not one hundred colored people outward from Chattanooga are drawing rations from the Government. In this regard he found eighty whites to one black person subsisting on the Government. The camps at Huntsville and Bunnell Hill will immediately be broken up. Those at Gallatin and Henderson are closed. The colored people who come into East Tennessee from North Carolina are returning to their old homes. The Legislature of Tennessee at the approaching session, it is expected will concede the right to colored people to be educated. It is indeed miraculous how they literally hunger and thirst for knowledge. In many places they are contributors for the support of schools.

An immense wagon train, numbering five hundred wagons with an ambulance train which was recently organized for the overland trip from Leavenworth, Kansas, has started on the journey, and is expected to reach its destination about the middle of November.

From Texas and Mexico.

NEW ORLEANS Sept 1. Matamoras papers report much recklessness among the colored troops. Matamoras is healthy. The Brownsville Republican of the 29th, contains a letter from Cortinas claiming that at Juarez Cañada he routed and drove back 800 Imperialists who were escorting a train. Also the Imperial steamer [illegible] from Matamoras were defeated by the guerrillas.

Gen. Sheridan was at Galveston Aug 26. Gov. Hamilton of Texas issued a proclamation ordering necessary steps to be taken to call a Convention. Delegates are to be elected, but only those loyal to the United States. Ex Gov. Murray arrived at Monterey August 4th.

The Texas intelligencer says Indians came within 5 miles of that city, murdering and pillaging in their march. New cotton is coming in pretty freely at Houston. The [illegible] worm will seriously injure the crops. [illegible] has gone to Mexico.

Monterey [illegible] says Confederate refugees [illegible] with the exception of [illegible] ordered to [illegible] further in the interior. Shelby is in the interior. General [illegible] has gone to practice law in Saltillo. Ex-Governor Allen of Louisiana is at San Luis Potosi. Two hundred Chasseurs [illegible] had arrived there [illegible] that the enemy would endeavor to capture [illegible].

Letters from [illegible] accomplished an Indian insurrection against the [illegible] administration. In that city preparations for a Franco-Mexican expedition to Lower California are in progress. Central [illegible] Commander in Chief of the First Division French Expeditionary Corps had started for Durango his future head quarters.

[illegible] The [illegible] says a gentleman from [illegible] reports the French marching on Chihuahua and says that Juarez [illegible] collected all the transportation he could and was rapidly falling back on [illegible].

Steamer Explosion—Trial of a Forger—Seizure of Cotton, etc.

TRENTON, N. J., Sept 4th.—The propellor Mattison, from New York, exploded her boiler near this city to-day. One lady was killed. The Captain and engineer were seriously injured.

Ketchum the forger was brought into [illegible] this morning. When he [illegible] he bore the [illegible] when arrested. He appeared [illegible] the court [illegible] being asked if he was ready [illegible] examination he replied he was not [illegible] counsel was absent from the city [illegible] adjournment of two days [illegible] till next Monday. It was intended to have the case presented to the Grand Jury to-day, but this adjournment has made the postponement necessary.

The Post has a dispatch [illegible] Sept 2d, saying a fire caught from a [illegible] at an early hour of Sunday morning which destroyed [illegible] and the [illegible] When the tank [illegible] spread over an area of [illegible]

The Herald's New York correspondent says [illegible] Wells, of Louisiana, was appointed [illegible] proceed up the Red river and [illegible] benefit of the State [illegible] purchased by Henry W Allen formerly rebel governor.

Captain Semmes, of Alabama pirate notoriety, and his son are still in New Orleans.

The Charleston Courier says that it is stated that a decision has been arrived at that only those will be entitled to vote at the approaching election for members of the [illegible] convention who [illegible] voters in 1860. If the report [illegible] will disfranchise all who have [illegible] and conflict with the [illegible] Perry's proclamation based on the adjustment made by President Johnson that the law [illegible] in force prior to secession should [illegible] valid.

A movement is on foot to invite President Johnson to extend his [illegible] to Richmond as far as Charleston and Macon.

The Late Railroad Disaster.

NEW YORK Sept 2.—The coroner's jury in the case of the collision on the Long Island Railroad, returned a verdict in substance as follows: That the collision was produced by the carelessness of R. J. Rice, conductor of the mail train, and James White engineer of the express train, and also Oliver Charlick, President of the Railroad for carelessness, and the irregular manner in which trains are run. The jury consider him as directly responsible for the catastrophe.

Matters in Georgia.

NEW YORK Sept 2. The Herald's Atlanta correspondent, giving an account of the journey from Chattanooga to Atlanta says there were some Confederates along the line but no cult n. At every station, people with fruit to sell, besieged the trains. Some of these persons were wealthy before the war, but are now reduced to a state of poverty.

THE ROCKVILLE MINES.—Col. F. B. Wilder before leaving his departure for the East made a particular survey of the various ledges discovered in the Rockville district, which was shown to us yesterday. The Rockville district is near the eastern boundary of this State. The [illegible] lead in the district is the Union lead, and can readily be traced by its croppings for a long distance around the hill. There are [illegible] the vicinity which we cannot [illegible] which we will not attempt [illegible] the property is a very desirable [illegible] lying about one mile from the [illegible] seven miles from the [illegible] of coarse quartz. The mill known as the [illegible] Quartz Mill, is located seven miles from the [illegible] Powder river and by the side of the [illegible] for twenty heads [illegible] with an abundance of water power sufficient to drive all the machinery that may be required, and at its most excellent [illegible] of Mr. Ready, who has greatly [illegible] The property [illegible] ways be considered to be highly valuable and [illegible] much. The former [illegible] yet in its infancy [illegible] of its future prosperity [illegible] in the gold bearing veins [illegible] worked, and which promise [illegible] further developed. By this we suppose [illegible] total plenty of rock such as we have [illegible] dry and seen, as has been forwarded East [illegible] thousand dollars per ton. Several hundred pounds [illegible] taken from this ledge has [illegible] Col. J. S. Reckel, owner of the mine [illegible] the mill at Powder river, have averaged [illegible] less than from $35 to $40 per ton [illegible] figures of $10,000. We were shown [illegible] of the rock of such unparalleled richness [illegible] that we were almost instinctively inclined to strike [illegible] but however much it might gratify [illegible] a few inches of that valuable property [illegible] is not so far distant but that we may all become [illegible] The gold of the Rockville [illegible] the returns likely to follow from the latest [illegible] most certainly not a handsome revenue [illegible] stating that fact. The first rich ailone [illegible] quartz were discovered in that district [illegible] During the summer of 1864 Col. [illegible] in it, and placed the mill [illegible] the site for crushing the rock [illegible] some $75,000 in the developments that [illegible] been made. The mill began crushing [illegible] of October, 1864, and after the space [illegible] was suspended until the opening [illegible] In May work was again resumed [illegible] been in successful operation. Now that the [illegible] so well established [illegible] and his individual attention [illegible] of business a specialty in the future.

LETTER FROM A VETERAN.—Mr. E. W. N[illegible] permitted us yesterday to read a letter from [illegible] at Providence, Rhode Island, lately [illegible] from the Federal [illegible] It is a gratification [illegible] showing the trials through which [illegible] who have borne the burdens of the war [illegible] The veterans are warmly received [illegible] thanked for the manner in which they served their country. There is no agency which [illegible] in uniting the bonds of distracted [illegible] at the [illegible] energies of the troops and now [illegible] grateful hearts should be free to [illegible] The discharged troops [illegible] in many places to obtain employment. Mr. [illegible] and we hope to see him and [illegible] his comrades here. It is singular how war [illegible] the people in its devastation. Some [illegible] who have been nearly or entirely bereft [illegible] enlisted in the cause. From the [illegible] of which Mr. Nottage is a member there was a [illegible] of soldiers found, who entered the service [illegible] Of these there has been no losses but [illegible] and sent have fought right [illegible] through very many trying scenes. The [illegible] the letter to which allusion is made above [illegible] in the head at the battle of the Wilderness [illegible] a charge in the enemy. [illegible] and was cheering the company [illegible] after the Captain and all other officers [illegible] and to such brave belongs the honor of [illegible] achievements of the 12th of May, 1864, on [illegible] All credit to their names.

The solemn rites of burial had been [illegible] by the Holy Catholic Church at Eureka where [illegible] was recovered, and there was no public ceremony [illegible] this last sad occasion. Miss Barry was a native [illegible] aged 24 years. The following lines [illegible] were handed us yesterday for publication:

> Though thou art quite happy and free
> [illegible] would I life to thy manes restore;
> [illegible] the blue deep thy kindred to see,
> [illegible] we claim thee so near Oregon's shore?

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—The Herald's Washington special dispatch says: The recommendations [illegible] the Mass Meeting at Richmond [illegible] that [illegible] being carried [illegible] They have been called on [illegible] Dispute [illegible] One was held on Friday at [illegible] Court House, which passed resolutions [illegible] the [illegible] to the Union. They endorsed the reconstruction policy of President Johnson.

Commutation of Sentences of Deserters. National Currency.

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—The World's special dispatch says: The President has generally commuted to imprisonment for a term of years all pending sentences of death in the cases of [illegible] [illegible] Three Mississippi [illegible] under sentence of death have been sent to Fort Delaware for five years each. An [illegible] says none of the prominent ex-rebel Generals have yet applied for permission to leave the country under the permission of the late Presidential proclamation. Gen. Lee has no thought of thus applying, though he has been offered a handsome mansion in London.

A special dispatch says: It is confidently predicted that the President will soon issue a proclamation restoring the writ of habeas corpus in the loyal States.

The amount of national currency issued by the Treasury Department for the week ending Sept. 2 was $2,[illegible]; grand total issued up to date $1[illegible],487,220. Total amount of certificates of indebtedness redeemed at the Bureau of Redemption of the Treasury Department for the week ending Sept. 2 was $6,987,520, and the amount of mutilated currency destroyed in same period $2,[illegible]06,575.

Postal Service South.

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—Contracts for postal service in the South are now being made with the railroads and steamboats. They are taken as an average of fifty per cent. lower than before the war. In one case $27,000 is now paid for service for which the Government gave $150,000 five years ago.

Manifestos from Southern Bishops.

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—Pastoral manifestos to their flocks from three Methodist Bishops of the South and from the Episcopal Bishop of Alabama are published. They recognize the unmistakable fact of the failure to destroy the political unity of the country, and urge on their people cheerful submission to the powers that be. Acquiesce in all the results of the war and return to good citizenship under the National Government. But they are more uncharitable on the subject of church reunion with their Northern brethren, claiming that the latter have repulsed previous advances made with this object, and insist that further proposals must come from them. Mr. Wilmer, Episcopal Bishop of Alabama, instructs his clergymen that it would not be necessary to resume their prayers for the President of the United States until civil authority is fully restored in the State. At a convention of Georgia Episcopalians, it was resolved to resume their connection with the church North whenever the Bishops should consider such a course consistent with the good faith pledged to their brethren of other portions of the late Confederate States.

California News.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 5.—The fusion or compromise ticket has been accepted by the regular Union Committee. Candidates of the Union ticket have withdrawn in favor of new nominees, and pledged themselves to support the new ticket. This leaves but two Union tickets in the field. The Democracy held quite a large mass meeting in Platt's Hall last night.

Hugh Henderson, toll collector at Meigg's wharf, committed suicide, this morning, by blowing out his brains. The cause assigned for the rash act, was poverty, misfortune and incurable sickness. He leaves a wife and three children in utter destitution.

John Wilson played the Buislay family, and other acrobatic and gymnastic performances, on last Sunday evening, and they were all arrested to day, charged with violating the Sunday Law by getting up a circus on that night. The case promises to be a novel one, inasmuch as no horses were used, and it is claimed that it is not a circus, nor is it yet a theatrical exhibition, nor, as is claimed by the defendants, does it come under the statutes in any manner. The case will come up in the police court to-morrow.

The Board of Supervisors last night received a communication from the Secretary of the Treasury through the Superintendent of the Mint, asking the city to donate or sell to the Government at small figures Union Square, to be used as a site for the new Mint.

Hon. Frank Pixley has addressed a card to the Bulletin, which is as follows:

"In your last paper was a card stating I had given one hundred dollars to the Sanitary Commission and paid the same in Greenbacks, and yet it is probable that the writer of that card knew that I had only given a one hundred dollar treasury note to that charity, but had afterwards subscribed $300, and in addition to certain literary efforts, had paid into the Treasury of the Sanitary and Christian Commissions and other christian charities over $6,000."

A small building detached from the main buildings at the Bay View Trotting Park was burned this morning. It gave rise to the rumor that the main building and stables had been destroyed.

Hot weather and triangular political conflicts are the leading themes in commercial circles to-day, and business is for the most part ignored. There was a rumor on the street to-day that W. T. Coleman & Co. have sold out their interest in the Pacific and San Francisco Sugar Refinery to a company of German merchants, but it lacks confirmation.

The mining stock market sympathizes with the inertia prevailing in commercial circles.

THE BATTLE-FIELD

Once this soft turf, this rivulet's sands,
Were trampled by a hurrying crowd,
And fiery hearts and armed hands
Encountered in the battle cloud.

Ah! never shall the land forget
How gushed the life blood of her brave—
Gushed, warm with hope and courage yet,
Upon the soil they fought to save.

Now, all is calm, and fresh, and still,
Alone the chirp of flitting bird,
And talk of children on the hill
And bell of wandering kine are heard.

No solemn host goes trailing by
The black mouthed gun and staggering wain,
Men start not at the battle cry,
Oh, be it never heard again.

Soon rested those who fought; but thou
Who minglest in the harder strife
For truths which men receive not now,
Thy warfare only ends with life.

A friendless warfare! lingering long
Through weary day and weary year,
A wild and many-weaponed throng
Hang on thy front, and flank, and rear.

Yet nerve thy spirit to the proof,
And blench not at thy chosen lot.
The timid good may stand aloof,
The sage may frown—yet faint thou not.

Nor heed the shaft too surely cast,
The hissing, stinging bolt of scorn;
For with thy side shall dwell at last,
The victory of endurance born.

Truth, crushed to earth, shall rise again;
The eternal years of God are hers;
But Error, wounded, writhes with pain,
And dies among his worshippers.

Yea, though thou lie upon the dust,
When they who helped thee flee in fear,
Die full of hope and manly trust,
Like those who fell in battle here.

Another hand thy sword shall wield,
Another hand the standard wave,
Till from the trumpet's mouth is pealed
The blast of triumph o'er thy grave.

The Fort Fisher Affair

REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE OF THE CONDUCT OF THE WAR—GENERAL BUTLER JUSTIFIED

The Congressional Committee on the Conduct of the War has made the following report on the two Fort Fisher expeditions, exonerating General Butler from blame for the failure of the first attack, and showing why the second was successful:

PRELIMINARIES

In the Senate of the United States, January 12, 1865, on motion of Mr. Wilson,

Resolved, That the Committee on the Conduct of the War be directed to inquire into the causes of the failure of the late expedition against Wilmington, North Carolina, and to report the facts to the Senate.

The Joint Committee on the Conduct of the War, in June, 1865, submitted the following report:

As early as 1862 the Navy Department appears to have been aware of the importance of closing up the Cape Fear river, in order to prevent the introduction of supplies for the rebellion by means of blockade running. The military authorities of the Government, however, did not feel themselves in condition to furnish the necessary land force for that purpose until the close of the summer of 1864. At that time General Grant expressed his readiness to furnish the requisite number of troops and gave it as his opinion that he could do so by the first of October.

Vice-Admiral Farragut was selected by the Navy Department to take charge of the naval force, but was unable to assume that duty on account of ill health. Rear Admiral Porter was then transferred from the command of the Mississippi squadron to the command of the North Atlantic blockading squadron, and assigned to the duty of preparing and taking charge of the naval force to operate against the defences of the Cape Fear river and the town of Wilmington.

Major General Gilmore was designated by the War Department to take command of the land forces to accompany the expedition. General Grant objected to this selection, and selected Major General Weitzel for that purpose. Subsequently General Butler announced his intention to accompany the expedition with Gen. Weitzel, the [illegible] of operations being within his department, and the troops being from his command. Although until Gen. Butler expressed his intention, it may not have been expected that he would accompany the expedition, no objection was made by Gen. Grant to his doing so, notwithstanding he had ample time and power to have ordered otherwise.

Preparations for the expedition were carried on with the expectation at first that it would start by the middle of October. The original intention appears to have been to collect the fleet at Port Royal, in order to lead the rebels to regard the expedition as one against Charleston. But for some reason, which does not fully appear, that intention was changed, and the fleet was collected at Hampton Roads. Owing to the information obtained by the rebels of the destination of the expedition, General Grant determined to delay it until a more favorable opportunity presented itself. Upon learning that a portion of the rebel garrison at Wilmington had been sent to increase the forces opposed to General Sherman in his march across the State of Georgia, General Grant gave orders for the prompt sailing of the expedition.

THE FLEET

A powerful fleet was assembled—the most powerful ever known, at least upon this continent—under command of Admiral Porter. The land force consisted of 6,500 infantry, two batteries of artillery, and a few cavalry. On the 13th and 14th of December the expedition started, General Butler, with the army transports, proceeding to a place twenty-five miles off New Inlet. Admiral Porter, with his fleet, proceeded to Beaufort to complete taking on his ammunition and supplies, including some powder for a vessel proposed to be exploded before Fort Fisher, and some ammunition for the monitors, which (for safety) were towed light from Fortress Monroe to Beaufort.

While the fleets was at Beaufort taking on supplies, General Butler, with his transports, was lying off Masonborough Inlet, during three days of very fine weather, having reached there during the night of the 15th of December. By the time Admiral Porter and his fleet reached the place of rendezvous, there were signs of approaching bad weather, and on the 19th General Butler, with his transports, proceeded to Beaufort for shelter, and also to renew his supplies of coal, water and provisions, which had become necessary. Beaufort was seventy miles distant from Fort Fisher.

THE POWDER BOAT.

On Friday, the 23d of December, Admiral Porter gave orders that the powder vessel be sent in as near Fort Fisher as possible, and exploded that night at one o'clock. Information of what he proposed to do was sent to General Butler, but did not reach him until Saturday morning, when he immediately started for Fort Fisher, ordering the transports to follow as rapidly as possible. The powder boat was exploded a little before two o'clock on Saturday morning, and the navy commenced their bombardment about noon of that day. Admiral Porter states that he deferred commencing the bombardment until that time in hope that General Butler would arrive, but finding he had not come by twelve he opened upon the fort, and continued firing until sunset.

GEN. WEITZEL'S RECONNOISSANCE

After the arrival of General Butler, General Weitzel and Colonel (now General) Comstock, of General Grant's staff, were sent to confer with the Admiral in relation to operations the next day. At 6½ A. M. Saturday Gen. Weitzel and Colonel Comstock arranged with Admiral Porter concerning the landing of the troops. Some 2,000 or 2,300 men were landed, and General Weitzel was ordered to reconnoiter the fort, ascertain as nearly as possible its condition, and report as to the practicability of assaulting it. Having done so he reported that it was not advisable to attack. His testimony upon that point is as follows:

After that experience [in assaulting military works] with the information I had obtained from reading and study, for before this war I was an instructor at the Military Academy for three years under Professor Mahan on these very subjects—remembering well the remarks of the Lieutenant General commanding, that it was his intention I should command that expedition, because another officer selected by the War Department had once shown timidity, and in face of the fact that I had been appointed a Major General only twenty days before, and needed confirmation, notwithstanding all that, I went back to General Butler and told him I considered it would be murder to order an attack on that work with that force. I understood Colonel Comstock to agree with me perfectly, although I did not ask him, and General Butler has since said that he did.

Question. Upon drill [illegible] and after all you have since heard are you entirely satisfied with the opinion you then formed about attacking the fort?

Answer. Yes, sir. I am fully satisfied from all I have heard since, from the result of the second attack, and everything else, I am fully satisfied that I did my duty there.

COLONEL COMSTOCK'S TESTIMONY

Colonel Comstock, of General Grant's Staff testifies as follows:

General Weitzel made an examination of the work and reported to General Butler that in his opinion an assault upon Fort Fisher would be impracticable.

Question. Did you accompany Gen. Weitzel in that examination?

Answer. I was not with General Weitzel at that time. Later in the evening I was on shore and made an examination.

[illegible] what [illegible] did you [illegible] in regard to the [illegible] of an assault upon the work at that time?

Answer. I cannot say that I formed a definite opinion at the time, as the question of assaulting had already been decided upon the report of Gen. Weitzel. I cannot perhaps give a definite answer to that question, because I allow my subsequent knowledge of the work to affect my opinion somewhat.

Question. Was it a strong work?

Answer. It was. I will endeavor to answer the question as to what in [illegible] I saw the work the first time about the same time that General Weitzel [illegible] at about the same distance. At that time none of our men had been in the work. I counted, I think, 17 guns not injured, so far as we could see. I thought the work at that time very difficult of assault. I thought then the chances of success were not more than even. Later, however, perhaps a half or three quarters of an hour afterward, I saw General Curtis and he told me that some of his men had been in the work, that a horse had been taken out of the fort, and that the flag had been taken off the parapet by one of his men, and that there were not more than twenty rebels inside of the work, and that he believed he could take it with fifty men. I asked some questions about his sources of information, and he then said he could take it with a brigade. If I had been in command of the forces at that point, I should have made the trial to take the fort, simply because his men felt or thought they could go into the fort. My opinion as to the practicability of an assault, when I first saw the work, was changed subsequently by the statement of General Curtis and the men who had been in the work.

"Question—On the supposition that the work was really not properly manned by the enemy?

"Answer—That was General Curtis' idea. I did not think so. I suppose the men were all in the bomb proofs, and I thought that if the enemy would let the men get up as close as General Curtis' men did, I thought it possible that confident men could rush in time to shut the rebels up in their bomb proofs. If the men had not had a strong belief that they could get in, I should have thought the chances of success were small. But with such a belief as that 1,500 men could have done anything.

"Question.—With the information that General Weitzel had, would you have agreed with him, independent of what General Curtis said to you?

"Answer—I should, from the information I had at that time.

STRENGTH OF THE FORT

In relation to the strength of the garrison of Fort Fisher and the effect of the bombardment, the rebel General Whiting (while wounded and a prisoner) just before his death, stated, in answer to questions sent him by General Butler, that

"Five companies of the Thirty Sixth Regiment North Carolina troops, and Adam's light battery, amounting to six hundred and sixty seven aggregate, was the number of the garrison at Fort Fisher on the 16th, 17th and 18th of December last.

* * * * * * *

"On the 23d, 110 men, veteran artillery of the Tenth Regiment North Carolina troops, fifty sailors and the Seventh Battalion Junior Reserves, about two hundred and fifty strong, were thrown into the fort.

"Question 13—Please state whether part, and if so, how much damage done to the fort by the fire of the navy, was repaired during the night?

"Answer—Casualties first day—killed none, wounded one mortally, three severely and nineteen slightly, total 23. Five gun carriages disabled.

"Second day—killed three, wounded nine mortally, six severely and and twenty-eight slightly, total forty six. Damage but very slight, one 10 inch, two thirty-two pounders and one 8 inch carriage disabled, and one 10 inch gun disabled.—The damage was repaired at night. The enemy's fire formidable and sustained, but diffuse, uncentrated. Apparent design of the fleet to silence the channel batteries in order to force an entrance with his vessels, and not to attack by land. The garrison was in no instance driven from its guns, and fired in return, according to orders, slowly and deliberately, 662 shots and shells.

"Question 14—By reason of the cessation of the bombardment at night, were you not able to rest and recruit your garrison?

"Answer—We were able to do both.

"Question 15—At the time of landing where was the supporting force, if any, to the fort?

"Answer—Assembling at Sugar Loaf as fast as Hoke's people arrived. * * *

"Question 17—At the time our skirmish line was deployed before the fort, what was the condition of the guns and defenses upon the land side, as to efficiency for a defensive purpose?

"Answer—The guns and defenses on the land front were in perfect order at the time referred to, except two disabled guns on the left, nineteen guns in position; palisades in perfect order, and the mines the same, the wires not having been cut.

"Question 18—In view of the condition of the fort and its garrison, would it have been possible, with either three or six thousand men to have taken the work by assault? (Note—In answering this question, please give as many of the details for the reason you may give as possible.)

"Answer—Possibly, yes; Probably no. The work was very strong, the garrison in good spirits and ready, and the fire on the approaches (the assailing column having no cover) would have been extraordinarily heavy. In addition to the heavy guns I had a battery of Napoleons, on which I placed great reliance. The palisade alone would have been a most formidable obstacle."

GENERAL BUTLER'S DECISION

Upon the report of General Weitzel and Colonel Comstock, General Butler determined that it was not advisable to make an assault. It will be remembered that Gen. Weitzel was the officer whom General Grant says he intended should command the land forces accompanying the expedition, and Colonel Comstock was an officer upon General Grant's Staff. Both these officers were engineer officers of skill and ability, competent to judge of defensive works.

It will be observed, upon an examination of the testimony, that the naval officers who testified before your Committee were of the opinion that Fort Fisher was much more injured by the bombardment, and therefore could more easily be carried by assault, than it was in the opinion of the army officers.

General Butler also determined to withdraw the troops he had landed and return to Fortress Monroe. In this he may not have complied strictly with the letter of his instructions from General Grant.

General Butler stated in his testimony:

"I will state what determined my mind against remaining on the beach near Fort Fisher. I was by no means unmindful of the instructions of the Lieutenant General. He had directed me to remain if I had effected a landing. If I had effected a landing I should have remained. But a landing requires something more than the landing of 2,500 men out of 6,500, on a beach with nothing but forty rounds in their cartridge boxes and where their supplies would be driven off the first storm. I did not think that was a landing within my instructions, therefore I deemed it much better for the country to withdraw, as I did, than it was much less risk and much better for the future. For if it was necessary, a sufficient number of men could hold the line of communication from Masonborough Inlet down to Fort Fisher, and all that could be spared from the armies around Richmond, could be sent down there, where they could go with six feet of water at [illegible] thence operating against Fort Fisher, they come prepared for a siege and remain there.

By going away I would draw off the enemy's attention. If I remained there it would keep his forces concentrated at that point, and if I was driven away by the storm that was coming on, then I should lose the men I had landed. I [illegible] the [illegible] I had [illegible] General Weitzel to [illegible]

Question. Did you and General Butler fully concur in everything relating to the expedition and the evacuation of it. I mean what was done after the expedition sailed from Fortress Monroe.

Answer. Yes sir, that is so far as I had information.

Question. Was there anything done or omitted to be done which you would not have done, or [illegible] if you had had full command of the expedition.

Answer. Yes sir. If I had the instructions that General Grant gave to General Butler, I would have done one thing that General Butler did not do. I would have intrenched and remained there. I should certainly have done that, and I have written to General Butler that I was sorry he did not show me that letter of instructions so that I could have advised him about that. There is where General Butler clearly made a mistake. The order seems to be explicit that he should remain there. No matter what the fate [illegible] would have covered his [illegible] sequence.

Question. Did the condition of things ever [illegible] that [illegible] attempted?

Answer. I think [illegible]

Question. In [illegible]

Answer. I think [illegible] that if the work [illegible] intrench them. [illegible] secure a landing, and [illegible]

Question. Was there [illegible] any difficulty in securing [illegible] all the [illegible]? [illegible] what [illegible] supplies [illegible] them.

Answer. In my [illegible] 25th [illegible] have [illegible] that a [illegible] the [illegible] who gave the order.

Question. You may think that it would not have been advisable to have done so but that it [illegible] strict obedience to an order.

Answer. Yes sir. I do think so at this season of the year.

General Grant testified as follows:

Question—The expedition was to surprise the fort?

Answer. Yes sir. [illegible] were very clear that if they effected a landing, there above Fort Fisher, that [illegible] and [illegible] immediately upon their landing there they were to intrench themselves [illegible] operate with the navy until the fort did fall. In my instructions I provided for [illegible] the capture of Wilmington, in case Fort Fisher did fall immediately upon the landing of the troops. If it did not fall then they were to [illegible] upon a siege of the place, [illegible] there until it did fall, and the capture of Wilmington would thus become a matter for future consideration. General Butler came away from Fort Fisher in violation of the instructions which I gave him. I [illegible] his own official report it is evident that he forgot his instructions [illegible] that part [illegible] his report shows that."

The rebel General Whiting states:

"Question 19. Please state whether with a force holding the beach from the [illegible] of the ground and from the configuration of the channel of Cape Fear river, it would have been possible for the Confederates to have maintained or provisioned the fort to any extent?

"Answer—No difficulty at all by the river.

"Question 21. In view of the condition of the weather immediately following the demonstration of the 25th of December, and in view of the force that might have concentrated upon the Peninsula as well above as below the place of landing, would it, in your judgment, have been possible for 6,000 men without artillery to have held out from the 26th of December to the 13th of January?

"Answer—No; and it is a matter of grave charge against General Bragg that the whole force was not captured on the 26th of December. He had the force and the position.

* * * * * * *

"Question 21. Would you have deemed it the part of wisdom in the part of the commander of the Federal forces to have exposed his troops in the situation referred to in question twenty one?

"Answer—I do not. Neither attack was practicable in the presence of the supporting force provided, that had been under a competent officer. The first landing ought assuredly to have been captured entirely, and as for the second, although deriving much greater advantages from the different mode of attack by the fleet and though pressed with greater vigor, it is due to the supineness of the Confederate General that it was not destroyed in the act of assault."

ORIGIN OF THE POWDER BOAT SCHEME

A novel feature was introduced into the first expedition against Fort Fisher, viz: a vessel loaded with a large quantity of powder to be exploded as near the fort as possible. The idea appears to have originated with General Butler, in consequence of reading of the terrible explosion of a large quantity of gunpowder at Erith, England, some time before. He suggested it to the departments at Washington, and they submitted it to their ablest engineer and ordnance officers for examination and report. Those officers while not anticipating any very wonderful results from this new experiment, still deemed it of such importance as to recommend its trial. A suitable vessel was accordingly selected for the purpose and loaded with powder, taken down to Fort Fisher and exploded. But the arrangement made for the instantaneous explosion of the powder were not such as to insure complete success, and the result of the trial was not as satisfactory as was expected. The time of the explosion was not such in the opinion of your Committee, as was proper to allow all the results which would have been attained by a more complete explosion to have been taken advantage of by the co-operating land force.

THE SECOND EXPEDITION

The resolution under which your Committee have conducted this branch of their investigation had reference only to the first expedition against Fort Fisher. But the two expeditions were so intimately connected, it was so necessary to ascertain the facts in regard to the second and successful expedition, in order properly to understand the first and unsuccessful one, that your Committee have taken what testimony they could obtain in relation to it. Some of the important witnesses they were unable to examine, in consequence of their absence in the field on active service. But enough testimony has been taken to elucidate all the leading important facts.

The naval force remained in the vicinity during some very stormy weather, while a second military force was organized under command of General Terry. This force consisted of some 8,000 men, with siege guns and intrenching tools. On the 13th of January the troops were landed on the beach above Fort Fisher, and proceeded to throw up intrenchments. The bombardment of the fort was resumed by the navy on that day, and was continued during the next day. The fire of the fleet was very heavy and exceedingly effective, disabling all the guns, except, perhaps, one or two on the land face of the fort, where the army was to attack.

On the 15th the bombardment was continued and in pursuance of previous arrangements the fort was assaulted. The assault was begun about three o'clock in the afternoon by a column of sailors and marines 2,000 strong, attacking the fort on the sea face. This assault, though made with great bravery, was repulsed with considerable loss. It proved beneficial, however, by attracting the attention of the enemy in that direction, enabling the army then to easily to effect a lodgment upon the other side. The contest was very severe, the rebels fighting obstinately, but were driven from traverse after traverse by the force of our troops, aided by the fire of the navy. After some seven hours desperate and continuous fighting the fort was taken and the garrison captured. Our troops and officers fought most bravely and are entitled to the highest credit for their gallantry and daring. The navy co-operated most heartily with the army and rendered every assistance in their power.

It will be observed from the testimony that there are several points of difference between the two expeditions. In the case of the first expedition while the navy were prompt and active in the bombardment and the landing of troops, there was a want of cordiality and co-operation between the two arms of the service which must have seriously impaired the efficiency of their joint action. The testimony of officers and the records of the Navy Department herewith submitted, are referred to by your Committee as containing ample evidence of that fact. In the second expedition no such feeling was manifested. For the most cordial spirit of co-operation appears to have actuated the commanding officers of the army and navy, and to that may be attributed the success which attended their efforts.

In the case of the first expedition the bombardment by the fleet does not seem to have seriously impaired the efficiency of the fort. But few of the guns of the fort were injured, and the garrison seems to have suffered but small loss. In the case of the second expedition the bombardment was far more effective. Almost every gun was disabled on the side of the fort where the army made its assault, and the contest was more of the character of infantry fighting on both sides than a contest between infantry on one side and a heavily armed military work on the other. And the assault by the sailors and marines, though not in itself successful, [illegible] the immediate results of [illegible] to the army by [illegible] the diversion it created in the operations of the garrison of the fort.

BUTLER JUSTIFIED

In conclusion, your Committee would say from all the testimony before them that the determination of Gen. Butler not to assault the fort seems to have been fully justified by all the facts and circumstances then known. [illegible] obtained. Respectfully submitted.
